

Dr. Gerhard Schleining, is Ass.Prof. at the Department of Food Science & Technology at BOKU - University of Natural Resources and Life Sciences, Vienna, working in the area of food quality management since 1983. His current research and teaching areas are food physics with special interest in rheology and food texture, quality and safety of food, with special interest in quality management systems, hygienic design, chemometrics, informatics and computer science. He made his dissertation on textural properties of cereal products. He participated in several EU-funded projects as WP leader like ISEKI (www.iseki-food.eu/), HEALTHGRAIN (FP6-514008, www.healthgrain.org), MONIQA (www.moniga.org) and TRACK_FAST (FP7 KBBE 227220, www.trackfast.eu). In the Thematic Network ISEKI_Food he was chairman of the working Groups teaching materials and methods and project exploitation. Since 2005 he is also Secretary General of IFA (ISEKI-Food Association, <https://www.iseki-food.net/>).